Biggest West of the Mississippi.

In reality "standing pat" is stepping backward.

Prentice said Train was the apotheosis of talk. But that was before T. R.'s time.

The spellbinders should drop politics and talk about the greatest Exposition.

Elected in 1904 our rough rider might "bust" the Washington precedent in 1908.

It is astounding that the city with the greatest World's Fair ever seen cannot control a single Mississippi bridge.

It is easy to keep out of an 88 barber shop or a Crève Coeur lake gambling scheme. Only a little thinking is necessary.

A cruise of inspection by a man who never sailed is one of the first funny things in the work of the new secretary of the navy.

If war vessels must continue to be christened with wine, it might be well to order the christening bottle from the Potter subway.

The news of the discovery, in Geneva, that exposure to a 16 candle blue-light power causes one to lose all sense of pain, will be received with a howl of joy by all patrons of dentists.

CROWDED INSANE ASYLUM.

The Board of Health has discovered again that the insane asylum is overcrowded. This discovery is made about once every six months.

There are 720 patients in the asylum, 190 of them being compelled to sleep in the hallways and general assembly rooms. The building is crowded with 500 patients. Not more than 400 can be safely and comfortably cared for.

This condition is the scandal of more than a decade. The asylum has been crowded for years, many of the patients being cared for in the Poor House.

In the new St. Louis now beginning to grow a leading feature of municipal policy should be an intelligent up-to-date system of public institutions. St. Louis is poorly equipped with the instruments of humanity and humane purpose. To lift the city to the highest level in this respect should be the aim of every public spirited citizen and a fixed item in the program of the municipal government.

In 1905 the greatest Exposition will have ceased to exist, but the travel to St. Louis will still be very large. The world has discovered that St. Louis is one of the coolest summer resorts.

A ONE-TERM PRESIDENCY.

For some time past the National Business League has been working to procure a constitutional amendment limiting the presidential tenure to one term of six years.

Sentiment indicated in the replies from civic organizations and other public bodies seems to favor such a change. In all sections the belief is expressed that one term is enough and that it should be longer than four years.

This is in agreement with Judge Parker's ideas and the reasons brought out by the league support his arguments. The temptation to use the civil service to promote a boom for a second term is very strong and few men are strong enough to resist it. The consequence is that a President often subordinates the public interest to his own ambitions, and does not always give his best energies to his public duties until after his re-election.

There is much reason in such considerations. But whether they can be made strong enough to induce the people to order an amendment is another question.

Whatever change is made, however, should be by way of a constitutional amendment. Until the public will is thus made known the people should be allowed a free hand to re-elect if they so desire.

An eastern college man writes to Harper's Weekly, complaining that the right to admission to the World's Fair grounds is denied to the man in a shirt-waist, however immaculate may be his attire. This is another of those things that "are not so." The shirt-waist man can go anywhere about the grounds and into all the buildings with the exception of the Fine Arts palace. Let all the college men come here and be cool. The weather has not been favorable to the shirt-waist man, but his style of attire is not taboed.

FOREST PARK AFTER THE FAIR.

The plan to restore Forest Park, suggested by the Post-Dispatch and fully illustrated and described in the double-page article in last Sunday's issue, is approved by Director of Works Taylor and other World's Fair officials, as to its main features. The plan, as pictured, shows a splendid vista of land and water, artistically arranged, with all the skill of the landscape gardener.

The general scheme of restoration is a matter of landscape gardening, but an extremely important part of the problem is to retain, for the people, everything that is permanent and adapted to park uses, in the way of buildings and monuments. There are the Art Palace, the Government building, the British, Oregon, Maine and other buildings. The object is to found a museum, to preserve such exhibits as foreign governments may be induced to leave here, and to serve as the basis for other art and industrial treasures, or objects of natural interest.

To insure the fulfillment of this plan, public opinion must be aroused. The people of St. Louis must do their part to make it possible. The Post-Dispatch urges a citizens' movement with this end in view. There should be organized effort, on well-considered lines, to make the restored Forest Park the successor of the World's Fair. Chicago gained much for her citizens from the Columbian Exposition, in the way of permanent park improvement. The great Field Museum and other features remain, as a result of the civic enterprise of Chicago. The time is ripe for the people of St. Louis to take action. This is a work to be done not only for our own generation, but for the generations to come.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

LIBERTY BELL.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
When viewing the Liberty Bell on Newboys' Day one of your bright newboys knelt and rubbed a penny on the bell. The policeman spoke to him and told him not to scratch the bell. He replied in a gentlemanly way and told the officer that the bell was sacred and that was why he wished to rub it with the penny. Why don't they have a tablet telling fully the history of the bell.

SMOKE AND CINDERS IN THE AIR.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Kindly allow me a small part of your valuable space in which to register my disgust with the laxness of laws here, which permit manufacturers and office buildings to pour out from their chimneys heavy black smoke, very much to the discomfort of the visiting and residential public. I am from Philadelphia, Pa., visiting the Fair, and desire to state that every time I leave Philadelphia where the laws compel the use of hard coal and where manufacturers know enough for their own interest to use appliances that consume the waste that is in St. Louis thrown out for the public to breathe.
Why should such a state of affairs exist here? Is it through ignorance of the above mentioned appliances; then a day at the World's Fair would not be amiss for owners of office buildings and other coal users.
GEORGE J. RYAN.

FOR NOBLER AIMS.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I very much appreciated the sentiments expressed by "Celtic-American" in Thursday evening's Post-Dispatch. Appealing to all the lowest instincts of the race—and holding up to the people such ideals as the full dinner pail and the more fascinating allurement of a full pocketbook—such teachings are unworthy of the citizens of a great republic such as ours. Good men and women are enough false teachers and false teachings now without adding to the list of those who lead the blind into the ditch of materialism and gross sensualism. To live for common ends is to be common; we are, in very truth, that which we love. If we love truth and honor and justice more than all else besides, we shall certainly move onward—
Drive out the beast.

"A CROSS STICK."

ST. LOUIS' ARM OF THE SEA.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
The opposition of some of the railroad systems that hold in leash the commercial and manufacturing growth of this city to the utilization of the Mississippi for ocean-going vessels, is a short-sighted policy on the part of their managers. Statistics show that less than 3 per cent of the commerce of Mexico, Central and South America comes into the Mississippi Valley direct, the vastly greater portion being diverted to Europe and only a minor portion coming to this country, mostly to the Atlantic seaboard cities and thence by 1000 miles rail haul to the central West.
With a fleet of swift sea-going freight vessels that can deliver tropical products at St. Louis at least six months of each year and at Cairo at all seasons, the entire system of railways in the Mississippi Valley would have their tonnage immensely increased in the distribution of coffee, sugar and tropical fruits consumed in the West, amounting to over $250,000,000 annually. These sea-going vessels would be the most valuable feeders of the railroads could have in the increase of a vastly greater volume of foreign (South American) trade than we now have or can hope to have without them. It is known that the Mississippi affords ample depth for ocean vessels of a new design that can profitably navigate the great stream, and if the business of the city of St. Louis are not alive to this fact, the knowledge may come to them too late. The Chicago ship canal and the Panama waterway (certain events of the near future) should be sufficient warning.

H. W.—A wingless lot of masochism tea three times a day might reduce your flesh. Avoid starchy food, however; cheese, macaroni, and do some hard work.

O. SKIN.—Lotion for oily skin: Boric acid, 1 dram; distilled water, 4 ounces. Add a piece of cotton or linen or absorbent cotton. Salts of tartar shampoo is used for oily hair.

A. K.—In any election contest, the ballot boxes can be opened and the ballots counted, but the ballots are burned one year after election.

D. K. L.—We do not recall youngest stenographer. To clean white dress, bathe with magnesia and borax and rub with a brush. Brush off when dry. Refined people do not flirt with stamps.

M. E.—Try good insect powder for dog fleas, once a week. Wash off the powder with water mixed with a little kerosene. Carbolic soap will bring out burrowing fleas. Perhaps camphor has caused loss of hair.

C. J. H.—The McKinley funeral train left Washington for Canton at 5:30 p. m., Sept. 17, 1901, reached Harrisburg after midnight and arrived in Pittsburgh at 7:30 a. m. of the 18th. We have no exact Pittsburgh figures.

FERNANDEZ—Brazilian commissioner, Col. Francisco Souza Aguiar. The Spanish exhibit in the Palace of Agriculture is the only one made by Spain on the World's Fair grounds, and is the work of three enterprising Spanish merchants.

X.—President Eliot of Harvard says St. Louis has the best organization of public education in the United States. You can not well count a mile in this city by blocks, as there is so much variation. On east and west streets blocks average 275 feet.

READER.—For wedding invitations, two envelopes are used. The one containing the invitation is without gum on the flap and bears simply the name of the one for whom it is intended. It is inclosed in a larger envelope that is to be sealed and addressed in full to the party for whom it is intended.

M. C. R.—It has been estimated that the ten wealthiest men in the United States in 1902 were: John D. Rockefeller, $400,000,000; Andrew Carnegie, $300,000,000; William Waldorf Astor, $150,000,000; Jacob A. Schiff, $100,000,000; W. K. Vanderbilt, $100,000,000; M. Flieger, $100,000,000; Russell Sage, $100,000,000; William A. Clark, $100,000,000; J. P. Hill, $75,000,000; William Rockefeller, $75,000,000.

C.—To remove mildew, make a thick paste of buttermilk and salt and cover the spots. Lay in hot sun for six hours. Rub off the paste and renew it, leaving it out all day. Next morning wash with pure water and repeat the process. Should rub with a faint stain remain, wet with chlorinated soda and lay in the sun. Wash, then, with pure water, and the mildew should not re-appear.

R. R.—Write to "President Central High School Literary Society." Night schools begin early in October and continue in session for 20 weeks, on Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 7 o'clock. The regular studies of the night high school are: English, literature, algebra, geometry, physics, the elements of chemistry, drawing and bookkeeping. If 20 qualified pupils apply for instruction in a high school study of technological character, it is the intention to make provision for them.

THE QUAKER MEETING

NEW YORK WORLD'S EDITORIALS TODAY

ONE TERM FOR PRESIDENT.

The National Business League, according to a Chicago dispatch, "is pushing its movement to amend the federal constitution so as to lengthen the presidential term to six years and make the president ineligible for re-election."

The reason urged by the league for this change is the constant danger of business depression through frequent national campaigns and changes in the government. This reason is material rather than moral or political, and yet it has such weight in the business world that it might aid greatly in securing a constitutional amendment.

The reasons for a single and longer term for the president go deeper than this. They grow out of the danger, illustrated most recently in President Roosevelt's personally conducted campaign for a nomination, of the use of executive power and of the danger to the country of a presidential candidate, and should extend the term to six years, alike to secure the greater stability in the government desired by business interests and to give the single-term President a full and fair opportunity to carry out with perfect independence his party's policies as approved by the people. For this reason the World regrets that Judge Parker deemed it necessary to decline in advance a renomination. Such a declaration, it seems to us, was not necessary, and it may cause him and the party much embarrassment hereafter. If Judge Parker shall be defeated this year, through no fault or mistake of his own, in a campaign which shall exalt his own character and capacity and shall secure for him the electoral vote of New York, he will not only be the logical but the inevitable candidate of his party in 1908.

These and other closely-related reasons supply a strong argument for a single term of the President. But in the World's view the change should be made in the constitution, rather than on the initiative of a presidential candidate, and should extend the term to six years, alike to secure the greater stability in the government desired by business interests and to give the single-term President a full and fair opportunity to carry out with perfect independence his party's policies as approved by the people. For this reason the World regrets that Judge Parker deemed it necessary to decline in advance a renomination. Such a declaration, it seems to us, was not necessary, and it may cause him and the party much embarrassment hereafter. If Judge Parker shall be defeated this year, through no fault or mistake of his own, in a campaign which shall exalt his own character and capacity and shall secure for him the electoral vote of New York, he will not only be the logical but the inevitable candidate of his party in 1908.

On the other hand if he shall be elected and shall give to the country such an administration as it would have the right to expect from him, he will be a natural and proper candidate for re-election. The very fact that he had been threatened by a Republican Senate in carrying forward the most important reforms demanded by the people would not only require a vote of popular approval of his acts, but would greatly strengthen him and benefit his party in the campaign, the rallying cry of which would be "Give to the President an opportunity to put into execution his ideas of real reform through his re-election and a change in the Senate."

Parker should feel strong enough, as we have no doubt he is, to resist any temptation to misuse his power for personal or partisan ends in case he shall be elected. Until the constitution is changed the tenure of a President should be left to the people, who have never yet re-elected an unsafe or unfit executive.

THREE SHORT WORDS.

In President Roosevelt's letter to the Grand Army of the Republic were three short words of great significance. Speaking of the Philippines, the President said: "At this time it is only under the American flag that the people of the islands can preserve the public order, the individual freedom and the material well-being which has come to them as the direct consequence of the deeds of your brothers in arms of a younger generation."

The implication here is plain that, though, "At this time" American rule is necessary in the Philippines, there will come a time when the United States can, as it did in the case of Cuba, establish freedom there and "leave the government of the islands to their own people."

This is in line with President Roosevelt's statement in his first message to Congress, that our purpose in the Philippines is to fit them for "self-government after the fashion of really free nations."

Such consistency in behalf of the only true American policy is worthy of high praise. We only hope Mr. Roosevelt will never go back on it, as he has on nearly every other one of his early public utterances except those in favor of "the big stick" as the instrument and emblem of his passion for militarism.

Imperialism or Democracy?

From the New York Herald.

The only eternal form of government in fact is a democracy, for the people are the source of power, and although that power may be usurped by an individual or a group of individuals for a period it is inevitably relinquished by the people, by the democracy. Mr. Bourke Cockran, therefore, performed a patriotic duty when he placed the issue before the American people in these ringing terms:

"Shall imperialism govern or shall democracy continue to guide this nation? Shall this republic remain constitutional, the people, and for the people? Or shall Jefferson made it free as Lincoln left it, or shall it give place to a personal government which a strenuous boss administers, which the trusts exploit and control, which

WHAT WOULD YOU DO TO ADD TO THE SUCCESS OF THE WORLD'S FAIR?

It is conceded that the World's Fair is superb. The management has done and is doing splendid work. But, in the multitude of counselors there is sometimes wisdom, and the Post-Dispatch asks its readers the question, What Would You Do, If You Had Supreme Power, to Add to the Fair's Success? Limit your suggestions to two, in each letter, and do not exceed 250 words.

Clean, Pure Water Free.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
The writer does not know where the water comes from at the Woman's C. T. water fountain on Plaza St. Louis. It certainly is good water. A hundred such places should be maintained by the Exposition company and abolish the penny-in-the-slot machines.
The Exposition company may get a few dollars out of these devices, but it is at the sacrifice of ten to one, for word has gone all over the country about these things and the people stay away.
Give the people clean, pure water in abundance and clean closets—these things the people have a right to, absolutely free, and you will add to the success of the Fair in various ways.

Advertise! Advertise! Advertise!

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
If I had the power you speak of, I would have a page "Ad" in large type on Wednesday of each week of the special feature for the week following in the leading daily papers of the cities of Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Chicago, Denver and San Francisco. "ADVERTISER."
Alas Bob Smith.

Keep Exhibit Buildings Open Late.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I feel sure the attendance and the cash receipts would be largely increased if the exhibit buildings were kept open up to 9 p. m., thereby offering the people more inducement to go out to the Fair in the evening. There are so many of our citizens who cannot get out there before present closing time, and many will never have the opportunity of seeing even the greater portion of the attractions unless the closing hour is changed. When those who hold the half rate tickets are loath to go after buildings are closed, how much more so are those who have to pay full rate?
FRANK O'G.

After the Hours.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
It is clear that all employees in St. Louis who receive no vacation cannot see the Fair, since the Fair proper closes at 6 p. m. It is quite as clear that all employees receiving a six or 12 days' vacation only on those days. If everybody could see the Fair every day (not taking the Sunday question) it is clear, further, that many dollars would be spent there which cannot be spent there under present arrangements. So that a plan—unaccompanied by additional expense—permitting everybody to see the Fair every day (except Sunday) offers a great financial benefit to the Exposition management, and a great benefit educationally to everyone allowed to attend.

The suggestion is simply to alter the hours of the Fair. Or, to put it differently, to alter the hours during which the big buildings are open; so that it would be between noon and 10 p. m. instead of from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m.

What vital objection can be made against it? No one.

S. A. CROWLEY.

Twenty-Five Cents After 6 P. M.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Were I to have the responsibility of increasing the gate receipts of the World's Fair, I should go at it in a simple but effective manner. First of all I should charge but 25 cents after the hour of 6 p. m., thus enabling the working class of the city to spend their evenings at the Fair after their day's work is done. The 25-cent night rate would work wonders, as the Pike features would do a wonderful business, and the coffers of the Fair would certainly be filled. These summer nights, as it now stands, the masses spend their evenings at the gardens as 50 cents is too much money for the average person to pay.

Give People Facts and Figures.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
The course necessary to increase the attendance is publicity, plenty of it, and the proper sort. The best way to gain publicity is the press, both the city daily and country weekly are essential. My suggestion is to have advertisements written to occupy say three half-columns, and send to every newspaper that has a bona fide circulation of 1000 or more.

Make the ad very plain, giving list of buildings with statement as to whether it is free or what charge is made for admission.

Then follow with Pike attractions in the same manner. Also give names of restaurants. This I know would cost thousands of dollars, but the expense would be returned a thousand times.

The impression of many outside of St. Louis is that an admission fee is charged to each and every building. This I know to be a fact, as many have asked me this question in the State of Missouri, Arkansas, Tennessee and Indian Territory.

Have plates made and thus you will get the same ad. in the Garland Times and Peoria World simultaneously. Make it as brief as possible, but at the same time say everything necessary, and make every concession adhere to the prices quoted.

Every man takes some newspaper, and the results of seeing this ad. before they go for four or five weeks will start many when they can figure the cost. Cost carried in plain figures move more rapidly than those that may conceal a snare and I believe the same rule will hold good with the Greatest of World's Fairs.

FOURTEEN RULES FOR A HAPPY HOME.

Here are 14 rules for wives to practice if they wish to keep the affections of that coy and elusive creature, the genius husband. They are formulated by Miss Edith Hendrickson in the Philadelphia North American, and are some of the maxims in use in the new "Training School for Wives."

1. Feed him substantially.
2. Keep the home bright and comfortable.
3. Practice repose.
4. Train your servants well.
5. Be always ready for the unexpected friend.
6. Spend money prudently.
7. Be cheerful.
8. Be interested in his business and in his pleasure.
9. Keep little household worries to yourself.
10. Be as careful in your attire and as anxious to please him as you were before your marriage.
11. Encourage your husband to spend at least one night a week at the club or elsewhere with the "boys."
12. Encourage him to bring his friends home, and have at least one "man's room."

where he can entertain them with perfect freedom.

13. Divide your time between the baby and your husband.
14. Take pains to be entertaining, cheerful, interested.

One Exception.

"Papa, is the hand that rocks the cradle the one that rules the world?"
"That's what I've heard."
"Well, I know one that don't."
"Who is it?"
"Nurse. She wanted to go downtown and mamma told her she'd fire her if she went and wouldn't give her no recommendation."—Indianapolis Sentinel.

8 Short Stories

HISTORY

John Greenville McNeal writes of a forgotten chapter in our history—the story of the American prisoners of war of 1812 who were taken to England and held in the Dartmoor prisons for over three years.

TRAVEL

Professor Sterrett of Cornell tells of the Caravansaries of the Orient, and the difficulties of travel off the beaten track. Arthur Symonds, the English writer, contributes a vivid picture of the Italian city of Ravenna.

LITERATURE

Agnes Repplier has written a delightful article on a literary woman of the early 19th century whose name has come down to posterity solely because she bored Charles Lamb.

FICTION

Among the authors of the 8 short stories in the number are Alice Brown, Edwin Lefevre, Elizabeth Jordan, Justus Miles Forman, Marie van Vorst, and J. Storck Clouston.

ASTRONOMY

Professor G. W. Ritchey of the Yerkes Observatory contributes a valuable article on photographing the star clusters. He tells how the remarkable work is accomplished and the results obtained. Illustrated with many wonderful astronomical photographs.

LAW

Brigadier General G. B. Davis, Judge Advocate General, U. S. A., writes of International Law, its past and its future, an article embodying some intensely interesting and practical views on such matters as arbitration and the limits of its usefulness.

NATURE

H. C. McCook, LL. D., tells of the curiously dainty habits of the ant, of its care of its person, how ants sleep, eat, and drink, and something of their social life.

PICTURES IN COLOR

Among the many pictures in color are 3 full pages by Howard Pyle, illustrating Mr. Forman's story, and others by C. W. Furlong and H. D. Nichols.

THE NEW BOOKS AND MAGAZINES

"The Woman Errant."

Mrs. Margaret E. Sangster writes to the publishers of the new novel by the author of "People of the Whirlpool":
"I have read 'The Woman Errant' with the fullest sympathy. It is a time that some one, with insight, genius and the charm of the name, in Ivory Steele, the author describes a familiar type, and shows in almost pathetic realism the unrest and intellectual craving for a life of business and intellectual competition and independence which robs too many young women of their birthright. The book is peculiarly one for the reading of our rich girls, who need not be crowded into the struggle of the market place, and who, gratifying a mistaken ambition, are likely to do a wrong, not to men only, but to their poorer sisters. The subordinate characters of the book are sketched with no uncertain hand, but the interest centers on Ivory Steele and her career as a woman errant."

A Russian Miracle Shrine.

It will be news to the reading public that Russia has a counterpart to the shrine of Lourdes—waters that are said to heal miraculously, flowing from a spring at Sarov on the site of the hut of St. Seraphim, the popular saint of Russia. Although Father Seraphim has long been venerated, he was not formally canonized until Aug. 1, 1924, a ceremony in which the Czar and the Dowager Czarina and others of the court, besides the church dignitaries, took part. It is believed that only two foreigners were present—an Englishman and an American, David Bell Macgowan, whose narrative of the impressive and curious scenes of this unique occasion is to appear in the September Century, with illustrations from photographs showing the Czar in the processions, and other scenes.

The article is incidentally a study of Russian peasant life, and records, among other things, how on this pilgrimage the people, in order to avail themselves of the reputed curative properties of the waters that flow from the well, would, without shame, strip and bathe in the brooks. Mr. Macgowan says that every Russian soldier wears an image of St. Seraphim, and that Gen. Kuropatkin and Admiral Skrydloff received costly representations of the saint on leaving for the war.

Took Her for Her Heroine.

Miss Miriam Michelson, the author of "In the Bishop's Carriage," has been spending her summer at beautiful Lake Tahoe, in northern California. After she had been there a few days she began to be startled by the peculiar actions of the other cottagers. They avoided her studiously, crossing to the other side of the road in haste when they saw her approach. The men whom she met fingered their watches and buttoned their coats; the women kept a watchful eye upon their jewelry, and the children gazed up at her with mingled dread and admiration. Miss Michelson, who is an old-fashioned woman and has a fine appreciation of the picturesque in life, rather enjoyed the novelty of the situation, and for some time made no endeavor to find out what the matter was. She smilingly took it for granted that the community had gone insane. But one day the mystery was solved—it developed that a romantic and somewhat misinformed summer girl was the cause of it all. She had passed the word at Lake Tahoe that the adventures of Nance Olden, the clever girl thief of "In the Bishop's Carriage," were autobiographical!

In California everyone is reading Miss Michelson's book. During a single day at the Mechanics' Library of San Francisco there were 140 calls for it.

"Idyls and Impressions of Travel," by Anna Corwell Wood, published by the Neale Publishing Co., is a series of sketches and impressions of travel gathered in Italy, Spain, Holland and Russia, told by a woman who sees more than the surface of things, and a nation stamps its insignia on her banners and her coinage, so Miss Wood has stamped her personality with a woman's insight on the pages of her book. You feel the spirit of the people, learn of their habit of life, feel the atmosphere, you pass the people on the streets and go to their homes. Miss

Wood captivates her readers with her exquisite description of scenery and places, the objects move along before your eyes, the imagination is charmed as she touches the field and makes them blossom.

There is nothing of the sensational character about the book, but it will be read and enjoyed by those who have traveled and love to visit and hear of out-of-the-way places and out-of-the-way people, told by a keen observer and a close student of human nature.

A Great Battleground.

There is a region in Syria where for 5000 years many of the greatest battles of the world have been fought. From the days when the armies of Egypt fought the Hittites, down through the conquests by Babylonians, Persians, Jews and Greeks, to the defeat of Zeno, and the battles of the Crusaders, this region, near Hamath, has been "the battleground of the nations." It will be described in the September Scribner's by Lewis Gaston Leary, for many years a resident of the East.

"Japan's Highest Volcano" is the title of a narrative by Herbert G. Ponting in the Century for September, of an ascent of Asamayama, made by the writer and a companion, with graphic views from photographs, including a startling one of "A Look Into a Crater."

Charles Warren Stoddard.

After a lapse of many years Charles Warren Stoddard, so celebrated for his beautiful "South Sea Idylls," which has become a classic in American literature, again announces a collection of idylls and stories of those summer seas full of his charming word pictures and exquisite touches which tell of dream-life in fairy land. The new book is entitled, "The Island of Tranquil Delights. A South Sea Idyll and Others," and will shortly be published by Herbert B. Turner & Co. Of his first collection Ralph Waldo Emerson prophesied: "I do not think that one who can write so well will find it easy to leave off." William Dean Howells called it "The lightest, sunniest, wildest, freshest things that ever were written about the life of that summer ocean." Rudyard Kipling wrote, "Your book is a very tropic of color and fragrance."

Suggestion.

To those who are investigating psychic phenomena, nature cure, rational hygiene, the development of will power, the achievement of health, happiness and success through the application of the principles of the New Psychology, the September issue of Suggestion (Chicago) will be particularly interesting. Dr. Parkyn, the editor, shows how suggestion and auto-suggestion may be used to banish ill health, and several articles relate to the cure of consumption by drugless methods. Other articles are: "The Cause of Disease," by Health Commissioner Reynolds of Chicago; "Psychical Research," Sir William Crookes; "The Breath of Life," Henry Harrison Brown; "Are Your Lungs White or Black?" "Sense and Nonsense about Radium," "Common Sense Philosophy," by Capt. L. W. Billingsley; "Nature Cure for Consumption," etc.

Pleased the Tutuils.

Tutuila, one of the latest territorial acquisitions of the United States, is most attractively and informally described by President David Starr Jordan and Prof. Vernon Lyman Kellogg of Leland Stanford University in the August number of the Atlantic Monthly. Highly interesting just now is the new light thrown upon President Roosevelt's attitude toward the islanders. There forwarded, it seems, in 1900, to President McKinley an elaborately engrossed and embellished deed of cession, which was never acknowledged. This matter, coming in 1903, to the notice of President Roosevelt, he proceeded characteristically to return suitable acknowledgment, together with many presents of watches and medals to the signing chiefs. These were publicly received on the 15th of January, a general holiday being made for that purpose, and many Oriental speeches were pronounced by the "talking men" of the territory—of which some significant examples are quoted by the writers in the Atlantic.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

It makes a girl have nice rosy cheeks to tell her so.
Just when a man learns how to live he has to go and die.
It's really wonderful how many tucks a woman can get in such a little thing as her age.

The only way you can get your wife to side with you in an argument is to have her mother-in-law side against you.

It makes a woman very suspicious of another who knows whether her husband prefers water or carbonic in his whiskey.

Finance Which Is Crime.

"It is high time the criminal courts should recognize the present duty, which the conditions of these times make daily more imperative, of drawing definitely the line which shall distinguish before the eyes of all men the finance which is finance from the finance which is crime."

So writes George W. Alger at the conclusion of his paper on "Unpunished Commercial Crime" in the August Atlantic. Mr. Alger, who is a member of the New York bar, knows whereof he writes, and his scathing arraignment of the laxity of our code in matters of vast commercial frauds affords food for serious thought.

How to Get Rid of Mice.

A lady reader has written us asking that we publish for the benefit of all housewives a recipe for exterminating mice. She says her life was almost unbearable by these little pests until she read of Stearns' Electric Rat and Roach Paste, which completely freed her home from mice. This Paste is easy to use, and greedily devoured by rats, mice, cockroaches and other vermin. It is sure death, and gives universal satisfaction, especially as the rats and mice do not die in the house. Dealers generally have the Paste for sale, or postages will be sent, express prepaid on receipt of price, by the Stearns' Electric Paste Co., Tribune Building, Chicago, Ill. Small size, 25¢; Household size, eight times the quantity, $1.00. All sales and recommendations made without cost. Co., 42 E. Wabash and Washington Sts., St. Louis.
